Unstructured Problems - 693

Words | Bartleby

The decision maker needs to consider all the pertinent information and select a solution best suited for the problem. A structured problem-solving approach places the focus on facts, issues, and solutions. This minimizes the tendency to play politics and coercion

What happens when a big problem pops up?
For most of us, our first reaction is, "Quick!

Read PDF Solving Irregularly

Let's fix it and make this problem go away." However, if we rush to fix the problem too quickly, we may end up implementing a "solution" or "quick fix" that doesn't solve anything because we didn't take the time to truly identify and understand the root cause of the problem itself.
